

Biosecurity Advisory Service

Outlining stringent biosecurity is absolutely critical for delivering the highest level of protection on-farm.

Our Livetec biosecurity experts have years of experience in delivering fully comprehensive advisory services that go beyond compliance, providing you with an on-farm visit with a biosecurity expert and making us a supportive partner to your farm business.

As outlined by Professor Christine Middlemiss, the UK's Chief Veterinary Officer, "It's vital that everyone keeps biosecurity and cleanliness at the forefront of their minds to keep their flocks safe".

Ensuring harmful pathogens are kept off of your farm premises is a 24/7 responsibility, with disease finding entry to farm businesses in a range of ways; from visitors, staff, and delivery or collection drivers to wildlife and birds arriving from the ground or sky.

In addition to outlining everything that is needed on-farm in order to ensure it is biosecure, our advisory service ensures that your farm business meets all of the requirements requested by assurance schemes and those outlined by Chief Veterinary Officers, who echo that "Implementing scrupulous biosecurity has never been more critical".

Defining the need for biosecurity and the measures required on-farm also encourages understanding. The level of understanding our advisory service provides of why and how biosecurity works can be critical to changing attitudes on-farm and increase the effectiveness of your controls, removing the barriers to up-take.

"It is your actions that will help keep your birds safe" said Ms Middlemiss, and biosecurity is the most crucial component in doing this.

Our biosecurity advisory service has been designed to detect the risks, deter and ultimately control any and all threats, using our knowledge of attending disease outbreaks across the UK for nearly a decade and extensive scientific research.

What's included:

- A full on-farm advisory session, with individual site visits
- A review of how your business operates on the ground
- A walkthrough from the road to your livestock
- Biosecurity assessment findings and recommendations
- Review of the current measures in place and data collection
- Farm mapping, looking at layout and operations
- Identification of issues and the solutions advised
- Defined on-farm processes and protocols
- Biosecurity performance scoring and rating

Providing the highest level of protection, our Livetec experts help you put biosecurity measures into practice that are tailored to your farm.

Livetec plans help protect your livelihood and livestock:

Biosecurity advisory service

Our biosecurity advisory service provides you with an on-farm visit with a biosecurity expert. Our full on-farm discovery sessions make us a supportive partner, helping you to minimise risks and know how you can better protect your farm from disease incursion.

Contingency plan

Our contingency plans encompass every aspect of farming businesses, predicting scenarios, risks and emergencies that could arise in the future and designing strategies that help to manage the impact of these concerns. Supported by a range of plans, this also helps make you compliant and insurable.

Biosecurity plan

Without a biosecurity plan in place, you are leaving your business and animals highly susceptible to disease incursion. Our biosecurity plans encompass and outline all of the measures that must be followed by every single person on and off farm to prevent the introduction of deadly pathogens.

Infected premises response plan

An infected premises response plan significantly enhances your preparedness. Designed to cover everything that APHA needs from you if and when they visit your farm business. This plan holds all of the critical information they need, in one place, allowing you to be less stressed and make your processes smoother.

National outbreak plan

Our national outbreak plan has been designed to comply with the regulations and requirements set by the UK government, providing bird owners with a wealth of information of everything you need to know should you be impacted by zones or a disease outbreak.

Cleaning and disinfection plan

A critical part of farming includes the ability to undertake thorough and comprehensive cleaning and disinfection of your premises. Our cleaning and disinfection plan is designed to give you the framework for all of the measures you need to take, with clear instructions that show compliance to APHA.
